At a gathering of the diocese of the Episcopal Church at Reno, recently, the following resolution was adopted: Resolved: That this convention records the unqualified condemnation of all schemes for raising money for church and religious purposes, which favor directly or indirectly of gambling the lottery, raffling and other games of chance.

We find no fault with the Episcopal church or ministers representing that church, for so deciding relative to receiving money derived from games of chance, which favor directly or indirectly of gambling, but to be consistent the church should not sanction or permit anything of the sort to be carried on where it has the power to prevent it.

The Review published the above on the strength of an item which appeared in this paper. There is nothing in the matter at all. The entertainment in question was given by the Young Ladies Secret Society at the seminary. The teachers had no part or parcel in the matter, and the young ladies did nothing which even the Austin censor could object to. The objection noted is so ponderous and its foundation so weak and shadowy that we regret now having paid any attention to it. These high moral strains are very dangerous in such altitudes as Austin.

WHO WERE THEY?

Two Connecticut Tramps Claiming to be Journalists Turn out Badly.

VERMONT, Nev., October 28. A most distressing scene occurred in the Police Court this morning. Two notorious cow-boys were arraigned for forging the name of one of the most distinguished citizens of Reno. One was tall, slim-built and knock-kneed; the other, white-haired, red-eyed and red-nosed, and both showed distressing signs of poverty and hunger. The following examination ensued: District Attorney—"What is your business?"

Answer—"I am the idol of the Democracy," holding out a ponderous ovate watch.

"I," said the other, "am the energetic and efficient fighter, a rising young journalist and a relative of the boy preacher."

Attorney—"At what salaries?" In chorus, "seven dollars a week, and the hope of a blessed hereafter." Attorney—"Do you lay up much?"

In chorus—"The $130 exemption racket is busted."

"What is your political?" Prisoners whispering, "We're agin Gladstone."

"What do you think ought to be done with you?" Prisoners in a loud voice, minor key, "Ought to be fed. Look at us!"

"What will you do if released?" Prisoners excitedly—"Boycot a restaurant."

The examination was postponed until to-morrow and the constable instructed to superintend the feeding of the animals. They refused to give any names.

A Girl Who Enjoyed Staggering. While a Carson girl was sitting under a tree, waiting for her lover, a grizzly bear came along, and approaching from behind began to hug her. But she thought it was Tom, and so leaned back and enjoyed it heartily, and murmured "lighter," and it broke the bear all up, and he went away and hid in the forest for three days to get over his shame.—Nevada Tribune.

TO-DAY'S NEWS

Press Dispatches to Evening Gazette.

EASTERN.

A Caucus on Mahone's Postmaster.

WASHINGTON, October 28.

The Republican Senators held a caucus this morning and discussed the situation as to the present deadlock and what had better be done. It was the general desire to bring the present session to a close, as some thought it useless to prolong the struggle, as the president can appoint Stratham postmaster. Finally a resolution was adopted appointing a committee to wait on the president and request him to withdraw the nomination of Stratham immediately so that the Senate may adjourn this evening. The committee will wait upon the president at once, and the republicans expect he will withdraw the nomination.

Work of an Insane Woman.

BELLEVUE FALLS, Vt., October 28.

Ezra P. Cook and wife, an old couple, were found dead in their house this afternoon. No evidence of violence was found upon the man. On the woman's head was a cut three inches long, but the skull was not fractured. Death was probably caused by concussion of the brain. Mrs. Cook often intimated that she was of unsound mind, and in her bed-room was found an undated letter, saying that she was crazy, and if at any time found dead she wished her son to be good to his father. The general opinion is that the woman administered poison to her husband, and then inflicted a blow upon herself.

How Wiggins Worked a Weak-minded Bachelor.

BOSTON, October 28.

In the Probate Court charges have been filed against Charles E. Wiggins, a well-known crockery merchant, for securing an estate of $150,000 from the late John Harriman by base frauds. Harriman's heirs have brought suit for $100,000 in the United States Circuit Court, and attached his store and bank deposits. Harriman was a bachelor who grew weak-minded and was then handed over to Wiggins's sister to be secluded and worked upon for bequests.

Sensor Parley will commence grading on the Eureka and Colorado River Railroad next week. All contracts for the first section have been closed.

Pat Doyle, a miner in the Boston mine, was severely hurt to-day by a falling bucket. No bones were broken and he will recover.

Railroad Rumors.

CHICAGO, October 28.

Railroad men in the East have given some belief to the theory that C. P. Huntington is providing for a continental route over the following chain of roads: The Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Chicago system from Cincinnati to Seneca, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific; and Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern to Sioux City, and the Central Pacific from Sioux City to San Francisco.

A Tabernacle Goes up in Flames.

LOUISVILLE, October 28.

The Warren Memorial Tabernacle, Presbyterian, corner 4th and Broadway, and the finest church in the city, was destroyed by fire at a late hour to-night. It was new and cost about $150,000. The fire is supposed to have been incendiary. It has been but a few months since the congregation freed itself from debt by the payment of $45,000.

A Beast in Feminine Form.

CHICAGO, October 28.

Emily Secrest, a young woman of Montreal, gave birth to a child in the closet of the Grand Trunk car near Battle Creek, Michigan, and endeavored to dispose of it, but its cries were heard by the conductor, and she was sent home with the babe.

Booming Confederate Bonds.

NEW YORK, October 28.

Confederate bonds are still in active demand. A representative of London interests is on his way to West Virginia with propositions for the adjustment of deferred bonds. National banks are heavy buyers of the extended lives.

Muncie Burns, a notorious burglar and penitentiary bird, was shot by a policeman to-night while playing his vocation. He died two hours afterward.

A Healthy American Business.

The excess of exports of merchandise for the twelve months ended September 30 is $240,970,615. Excess of imports of gold coin and bullion for the same time, $77,360,563.

The Fast Train to Chicago.

NEW YORK, October 28.

The Sus says of the Pennsylvania railroad limited Chicago Express: The train will leave New York at 8 A. M. Monday. Accommodation on this train will be limited to such a number of cars as can be handled with a certainty of making the running schedule. Breakfast will be served immediately after leaving Jersey city, dinner about 1 o'clock when the train leaves Harrisburg, and supper at 8 before leaving Pittsburgh. The following morning breakfast will be ready before the train arrives at Chicago. The price of each meal will be 75 cents and the menu will be elaborate. Samuel Carpenter, general

Eastern passenger agent said the company was forced to put on the train by the overcrowding of other trains to the discomfort of a certain class of patrons. The new scheme was discussed in the office of other roads yesterday, but no action was taken to offset its possible effects.

Political Movements in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, October 28.

Hill's resolution to-day indicates that the doors of the Senate will be opened for discussion of the Stratham case. The Democrats want to enlarge on the statement of Judge Rives, that Stratham's nomination would elect a Republican Senator in Virginia. Hill says "we have abundant evidence that the president is making appointments for the sole purpose of influencing the election in Virginia. I intend to push the resolution." The Republican Senators expect the president to withdraw Stratham this afternoon. The president will unless the Senate adjourns soon, be obliged to make a large number of appointments to offices, the terms of which expire soon. The Senators are all anxious to get home and talk over with their constituents the matter of filling vacancies. The Senate is really without a quorum, and any separator by asking for roll call could stop the proceedings. The Republicans are confident that Arthur will remove Stratham and let the Senate adjourn. If not withdrawn the Republicans will maintain the fight as long as the Democrats.

A Temperance Convention Calls on Arthur.

WASHINGTON, October 28.

Delegates to the Woman's Christian Temperance Convention called on the President to-day. The President was introduced by Senator Blair of New Hampshire. Mrs. Wilkerd, president of the convention, made a short address, asking the political and moral aid of the President for the objects of the convention. The President replied briefly that he was in earnest sympathy with the movement to rescue men from evil habits. The delegates were then introduced by States. Mrs. Chapin, of South Carolina, said she in part represented the South and hoped that it had a part in his affections. The President replied that he was glad to say that he was President of a united country, and no part would be without his warmest wish for its happiness and prosperity.

Civil Service Sale.

WASHINGTON, October 28.

In the Senate Hill, of Georgia, offered the following: Resolved, That appointments to offices under the Federal Government ought not to be made to control or influence the Senators of southern States, and that appointments made with such intention are unwise and contrary to the spirit of our political institutions, and if continued without rebuke by the people it will become dangerous to the perpetuity of our institutions. Hill asked for immediate consideration of the resolution. McMillan objected and it was laid over.

New York Politics.

NEW YORK, October 28.

The Times is encouraged by yesterday's registering here and in Brooklyn to believe that the Republicans will poll sixty thousand votes for the State ticket in this city. That would leave the Democrats with about thirty thousand and majority, which with the addition of the corresponding ten thousand in King's county ought to be easily wiped out by Republican majorities in other parts of the State.

FOREIGN.

Irish Dynamite.

DUBLIN, October 28.

Our correspondent at Dublin telegraphs "an extraordinary discovery of dynamite with a fuse and cap was made by the officers of the Great Western railway at Drogheda station last evening." It appears that a passenger of respectable appearance was observed by a fellow passenger who traveled from Dublin to Malahide by the down express train to be handling a parcel from which the ends of cartridges were seen protruding. On the arrival of the train at Malahide the guards attention was called to the fact that combustible were being carried on the train. The guard took possession of the parcel and placed the affair in the hands of the Superintendent, who endeavored to get the name of the supposed owner of the parcel, but failed, the party denying any knowledge of it. The parcel weighed nine pounds and was found to contain dynamite.

An English Sport in a Hat.

LONDON, October 28.

The proceedings at Newmarket yesterday were enlivened by a tilt between Walton, of New York, and Sir J. D. Astley. Walton backed Astley's Medious for the Bretley race and was successful. Shortly afterward he encountered Sir John "in a bird cage." The Baronet was in a towering rage, and walking up to Walton accused him of forestalling him in the betting, and spilling the execution of his (Sir John's) commission. Walton replied temperately enough, but Sir John told Walton that the sooner he went back to America the better, and finally threatened to horsewhip him. Walton at last walked away. Sir John was greatly blamed for setting so disgracefully. Walton won about £9,000 on the day's proceedings.

Pirates on the Chinese Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 29.

From Chinese exchanges comes news that a pirate chief has been creating much commotion at Ningho. He is said to have come within seven miles of town and levied black mail freely. He does not care for the Chinese gunboats, and has had several engagements with them lately. A reward of $50,000 has been offered for the pirates head. An encounter took place September 15th, near Ningho, between Chinese gunboats and the pirates, upwards of 200 pirates were slain or drowned themselves, nine were captured alive, and about seventy escaped. Eleven pirate boats were taken. The pirates were in shallow water and the gunboats were unable to get near them, but they lowered small boats and fought in them.

THE ARGUMENT.

THE THEORY OF THE STATE THAT McMECHAN AND WHEELER FIRED ALL THE SHOTS.

Webster says the Moore Party Had a Right to Exclude all the Rest. Clarke and Dixon Agree that Cogan Killed Scoville.

In the Police Court yesterday, District Attorney, Geo. A. Rankin, opened the case for the State, and defined its theory. He thanked the Court, W. H. Young, for his patience and impartiality in the twelve days of hearing the evidence. He said he had never seen a case so important where all the attorneys had been so fair and so little sparring and disagreement. His associate, General Kittrell, was highly complimented. He said there are but two points of importance: Who killed Scoville? Was he justified in the act? Only thirteen persons were in the middle room, Woods, McMurray, O'Leary, Allen, and Bragg were not armed. They could not have shot him. Scoville did not kill himself. There is no evidence that Sunderland, Balch or Moore killed him. The killing must be narrowed down to Wheeler, McMechan, Cogan and Cogan. Let us see what there is to show that Cogan killed him. General Clarke here interrupted and asked that if Cogan fired first at McMechan, and McMechan afterwards killed Scoville, if Cogan was not guilty of the murder? Rankin read cases to prove that such was not the law. Rankin said it was impossible for Sunderland's evidence to be correct as to where Cogan stood when he fired the first shot. McMechan must be mistaken about where he saw Cogan start from. All the witnesses contradicted him. Might he not also be mistaken in seeing him come into the door with a revolver in his hand. If he is mistaken in the two first things he might be in the third.

At this point the court took witness's evidence and adjourned for lunch. After lunch Cogan testified that witness's evidence was untrue. Rankin resumed his argument. McMechan swore that Cogan was outside the door when he fired. Sunderland swore that he was in the center of the room when he fired. Why was it Wheeler did not see Cogan come in? He was looking right at the door and yet he does not say that he saw Cogan fire the first shot. Hillard says that when Fowler called, Cogan had left the chair and he (Hillard) was sitting there and that he left there and went straight to the door. Admitting, however, that McMechan is correct and that Cogan fired the first shot, there is nothing to prove that Cogan fired the shot that killed Scoville. If Cogan fired at all he fired two shots. If he did, where are the marks? McMechan swore that he fired three shots into that corner. If so there should be two more bullet marks. There are no such marks. I think McMechan fired the shot into the north wall. In regard to who killed Scoville, the weight of the bullets is conclusive evidence. McMechan's pistol is produced in court, three clips loaded and three empty. The bullets weigh 161 grains. The bullet in Scoville's body weighed 160 grains. A grain could easily have been lost. The bullet shot into the quarter of beef lost a grain. The bullet in the west wall, the bullet in the north wall, with the piece found outside, weighed the same within a grain or so of each other, and of McMechan's bullet. Cogan's bullets weighed 117 grains. The only theory including Cogan would be that he had two pistols, and there is no evidence to show it. Parrott swears that he loaded Wheeler's pistol with 45 calibre balls, which correspond with the ball found in the south wall and the one in the floor. I am convinced that the eight shots came from E. D. Wheeler and James McMechan. I believe from the bottom of my soul that no one else fired a shot that day. I now ask Mr. McMechan justified in killing Scoville? The law says that it must appear that the danger was urgent and pressing, and that the blow was struck not with any spirit of revenge, but to save the defendant's life. I ask you did McMechan act in the defense of his person or property in killing Scoville? The Wheeler party were the original incorporators of the road. Moore was the contractor and the stock was issued to him under the contract. The directors met and issued to themselves 50,000 shares of stock. An injunction was obtained against this stock. After it was served, a modification was obtained permitting the stock to be voted. So you will see that both parties had a right to be there and that neither had a right to exclude the other. Moore's party goes out on the road and brings in seven men to assist them in excluding the Wheeler party. That may have been wrong, but I think it was not a violation of the law. The Wheeler party armed themselves with murderous weapons and went there. Wheeler's crowd goes first and sent themselves. Under the by-laws Wheeler had a right to act as President of the meeting. Fowler orders them out. Up to this time there is no dispute in the testimony. When Fowler took hold of McMechan to put him out, can you hear any that that was an excuse for taking life in self defense. Was McMechan's life in danger? The law does not hold human life is such light esteem as that. But he did not kill him. They left him, and while his life was not in danger, and no one was attacking him, he fired three shots into the corner, and he says himself, he shot to kill. He swears that he did not know Scoville was armed. While there was nothing to prevent his walking out of the door, he raised his pistol and fired three shots, and was anxious to hit and take the life of a human being. Where is there any self defense in that? If he had shot when Fowler and others were struggling it might have been self defense; but to fire when no one was assaulting him, was revenge. He took the life of the man because he was opposing him in other matters not involved in that quarrel. I do not ask your Honor to hold Cogan. You can determine that yourself. I ask your Honor to hold Wheeler, not because he hurt Balch, but because he fired into the corner, and because the evidence shows that there was a combined movement to kill these men. Judge Wheeler does not say that Balch aimed a pistol at him. It is clear that Wheeler advanced on Balch. Does your Honor claim that an old man like Balch, almost with one foot in the grave, advancing on a man with splendid physique, who could pick him up and throw him out, ought to act in self defense. But before he fired at Balch he fired the shot into the corner. No one saw him fire it, but his was the only pistol it could have come from. Now McMechan turned around to fix his pistol. If it is a cool man that could stand in the middle of the room, with his hat down over his eyes fixing his pistol. Now Cogan, McMechan and Wheeler say they saw Balch snapping his pistol at McMechan's breast. Imagine them standing looking on at such a scene as that. It cannot be true. I believe that that evidence was necessary to keep somebody out of the patient's way for the assault on Balch. Then Cogan says he picked up a pistol off the floor and handed it to Balch. What an absurdity! I draw the conclusion that it was impossible for Balch to have had a pistol, but it was necessary to establish that Balch made an assault to save Wheeler from the gallows if he died, and the penitentiary if he lived. The testimony shows that McMechan fired three shots without any cause whatever, and that he and Wheeler fired the only shots that day, and that there was concert of action. I ask, therefore, that McMechan and Wheeler be held for manslaughter, to appear before the Grand Jury, which meets next Monday.

Judge Webster said that the District Attorney had followed his theory exactly. He said: I claim that the Moore party had the right to keep the other party out of the office. They had a right there, and believed that they were the only stockholders, and that any other parties were intruders, and that all propositions by Moore were made for the purpose of having a quiet and uninterrupted meeting. By the laws of Nevada the first Board of Directors should be selected from the original subscribers, but that at the first annual meeting, none but stockholders could vote. The Wheeler party, keeping the order a secret, and going to Parrott to get their pistols loaded, shows that they went there to shoot these men down if interfered with. A New York case was introduced where a man was put out of Morrissey's gambling house. The Court decided that the house had a right to put anyone out, using any force necessary. The man had frequently been in the house, but Morrissey had the right to revoke his invitation and keep him out. Webster claimed that the company owned the office, and as the stockholders were the company they had the right to hold the meeting. When Wheeler's party kept the order secret and got into the office they set a trap and when we got in they turned loose on us. The facts show that they are four of the most desperate men that ever trod the soil of Nevada. I cannot see how the District Attorney can ask that McMechan should be bound over for manslaughter only. They claim that Wheeler called the meeting to order under the by-laws. The by-laws were passed September 17th and had been in Carson all the time. If they accuse Scoville of stealing papers Cogan must be equally guilty. Deal announced that he would claim that the order of Judge Hillard was void. Rankin said that there were points which reduced the crime to manslaughter. At 7 o'clock General Clarke spoke in defense of Cogan. He said he was entirely satisfied with the Court's fairness and impartiality. He thought this case very important. The persons were not only men of standing, character and property, but they had never before been accused of crime. Now they are being examined for the highest crime known to the law.

By the contract with Moore he was to build 31 miles of road and then receive $200,000 in bonds, $100,000 in stock, and 4,500 shares of stock. Before he had built ten miles he received them as a fraudulent act of the President and Secretary. The board refused to accept the rolling stock Moore had bought and he called a meeting of the stockholders to oust them. They saw his plan working to get control of the board, and they saw that the board had a right by law to issue stock. They issued stock to themselves to defeat the unlawful scheme. The history of the affair was rehearsed. I am surprised to hear my young friend the District Attorney ask your Honor to hold only McMechan and Wheeler when five men swore that Cogan came in with a drawn pistol, which justifies anyone in killing him. As to my client's killing Major Scoville, there is no evidence that he fired a shot, except Scoville's dying statement, and that is not positive. Fowler says he shot at him but did not fire. He saw Cogan point his pistol at his head and he seized his pistol and pressed it down. Within 20 minutes Cogan was arrested and his pistol taken from him. It was not fired and the barrels were full of dust and lint, showing it could not have been fired. No witness has put McMechan in position to fire the bullet through the window. I think it was McMechan's bullet that went through Balch's hat. He fired three and Wheeler two or three shots; who fired the others? Counting the ball through Balch's hat there are 9 shots to account for. I believe Cogan fired through the window and into McMechan's chair and into Scoville. General Clarke resumed his argument this morning at nine o'clock. He made an able argument although suffering from a cold on the back of his neck. Among the new points he made were that the stockholders could have held their meeting either in the front room or in the engine room, but the Moore party were determined to hold it in the middle room to make trouble. The Directors looked at the property of the company, and the advice of the lawyer that they could be put out by law ought to be stigmatized and made to stink in the nostrils of this people. The by-laws say that the President of the Board of Directors shall act as President of all stockholders meetings and the Secretary act in the same capacity, and yet they were given the wicked advice to put this man out. He drew a humorous word picture of the meeting at which Webster advised them to put the Wheeler party out. He said there could be no corporation without stockholders, so if the stock had all been subscribed and only ten per cent paid, there never would be any stockholders. I doubt if there would be but one lawyer on the face of the earth to hold such an opinion. Clarke read decisions of several Courts to show that the act of subscribing made a man a stockholder, even if he had not paid a cent. My client has a right to be there, was it an offense against the law that he should be there? Scoville, in his dying statement, says that he laid violent hands on McMechan, and before a shot was fired he drew his pistol to intimidate McMechan, and that he also laid violent hands on Cogan. If Cogan had killed Scoville in his tracks at the time he could not have been held. The assault was not on one but on the four.

Dixon began his argument at 10:30. He said the District Attorney had made up his mind early that McMechan ought to be held, and he had his mind closed to the merits of the case. He said the manifest of Moore, Cogan and others showed that they committed rank perjury. If they would come here to break up a meeting, they would perjure themselves. He discussed the rights of stockholders, at length, and the events before and at the meeting. His theory is that if it cannot be found who killed Scoville, that the assaulting party is guilty of manslaughter.
